

The best parts of the role are supporting pregnant women and their families through the pregnancy journey, being part of women's labour and meeting their newborn for the first time.

I am looking forward to graduating as a registered midwife with lots of practical experience, working for the NHS with confidence and delivering lots of babies!

The challenges? Being scared of making a mistake, although my colleagues are always on hand to help. And coping with long hours – but it's definitely worth it!

I need to remain focussed under pressure.
